Life on the Balcony

Three Not-So-Usual Flowers for Fall & Winter

Violas, cyclamen, and ornamental kale are typical recommendations for fall gardens. But what if you're looking for a different, more unique look this fall?!

Calendula

Calendulas look like ruffled daisies and provide a punch of color from late fall through spring in mild-winter climates. They're also great as cut flowers because their flowers last a long time. Plants get to be about 12-18 inches tall and wide. They like full sun and prefer to dry out before watering again.

Helebore

Helebore add sparkle to the garden at a time of year when few other things are blooming. They have either downward or upward facing flowers, although the upward facing ones are becoming more popular. The flowers come double or single, and in a wide variety of sophisticated-looking colors. They take full sun or part shade and like fast-draining potting mix. Water regularly.

Helenium

Helenium—their less appetizing common name is 'Sneezeweed'—look like sunset-colored coneflowers. Plants form an attractive clump that will be completely covered in flowers. And they're great for forgetful gardeners because they won't protest too much if you miss a watering or two and are fine without fertilizing.

MAINTENANCE TIPS

Refrigerator Tips:

Get the Most from Your Fridge

Temperature- The FDA says that 41F or less is the temperature at which refrigerators should stay. Keeping food at or below this temperature slows the growth of most bacteria---while it won't kill bacteria, it will keep them from multiplying. As for the freezer, the FDA says to freeze at 0F or less. They also recommend checking the temperature once a week.

Green Refrigerator- Tips setting your fridge (and freezer) to the right temperature is one way to go green and not waste energy. The Green Guide suggests more ways you can save energy and save on your electric bill:

- Keep the top of your refrigerator clutter-free, as it can hamper the compressor's proper circulation
- Avoid evaporation by covering food and drips in the fridge

A Message Center- If you have room, consider turning the fridge into a message center. If your refrigerator has a magnetic front or side, keep a few magnets and paper on there, and it can be your designated place to leave each other important notes and reminders.

Asking for your help in keeping your community looking nice. When you take your trash to the dumpster PLEASE place it inside and close the side door or top. Critters love a free meal if they can get in!!!!

Are you ready for school?

New Classmates- Your attitude is everything. A new room of classmates is like going into a mansion with several doors. Open each door and see what's inside. You may find a treasure of friend!

Getting Lost- It is extremely comforting for younger students to visit their new school ahead of time in order to see their new classroom, or walk down the school's hallways before the hustle and bustle of the first day. Many schools provide a day during registration or the week before. Call your school office to make arrangements.

Fashion- Although we hate to admit it....this matters to kids-- especially in the older grades. Before shopping, go through catalogs and magazines to get an idea of what your child wants to wear. Encourage independent style and self expression. Working as a team in this area can be frustrating, but if your child likes their wardrobe--- everyone is happier. And don't forget to refer to your school dress-code regulations.
